___ me love sur vives___

Mountain ranges high and wide divide a broken land
Rivers deep and strong rage across the roads
Deserts desolate and bleak are filled with burning sand
Heavy are the packs; unwieldy are the loads

Seeking sheltered ground, I cross the barren plains
Strewn with fences built to halt the roadway through
But I march on through the heat, the winds, the pouring rain
What force nature could keep me from reaching you?

Let the seasons change – summer burn, the winter freeze
Let there come what may before my heart arrives
Let the wild world burden me and drive me to my knees
As long as you await me, love survives

Cities fall before me, ruined and neglected
Wreaking with despair and rotting from inside
Danger lurks in every seam, but I'm directed
By a love that serves my spirit as its guide

Let creations fail – the bridges fall, the buildings tumble
Leaving many dashed and desperate lives
All our species builds one day may crash and crumble
But as long as we're together, love survives

Rivers roll and deserts burn and mountains reach
But who might listen to the lessons they might teach?
Voiceless souls they are springing from the soil
What spirit do they bring to our mortal coil?

Cities grow as human hands build tomorrow
Temporary joy crumbling into sorrow
Time may be eternal, but history assures
Life is eternal everywhere love endures

Time rolls on before us, cold and never out of stride
Dragging us along like fragile toys
Let's sing together on the time march side by side
In harmony to life's eternal noise

Let the clock tick on, in careless oscillation
Let its hands slash round like turning knives
But in our mortal breath, we have eternal consolation
Even time can't change that love survives

Let the seasons change – summer burn, the winter freeze
Let there come what may before my heart arrives
Let the wild world burden me and drive me to my knees
As long as you await me, love survives
